

OAKTON EMERITUS

AFTER ISIS, WHAT'S NEXT?

Join Robert Pape, Ph.D., one of the world's leading researchers on terrorism, as he provides a survey of recent trends in terror and the effects on Iraq, Syria, and the Middle East.

Free Lecture for Adults Age 55 and Older

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 2017 | 11 A.M. - 12:30 P.M.

Oakton Community College, Skokie Campus

Reservation required. Seats are limited. RSVP at emerituslecture.eventbrite.com or call 847-982-9888.

Robert Pape is an author, commentator, researcher, professor (University of Chicago), and founder of the Chicago Project on Security and Threats (an international security affairs research institute based at the University of Chicago). He has written dozens of publications including Dying to Win: The Strategic Logic of Suicide Terrorism (Random House, 2005) and Cutting the Fuse: The Explosion of Global Suicide Terrorism and How to Stop It (University of Chicago Press, 2010). His commentary on international security policy has appeared in the New York Times, Washington Post, Boston Globe, Los Angeles Times, and the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists, ABC, and more.

Free and open to the public.

Sponsored by Oakton Community College Educational Foundation and Emeritus program, offering high quality programming for adults age 55 and older.

7701 N. Lincoln Avenue, Skokie